XI.  NUVANCE HEALTH FRAUD PREVENTION PROGRAM

Overview

36) A crucial component of the Compliance Program is the dedication of resources to implement initiatives to prevent, deter, and combat fraud and criminal conduct. All Covered Individuals, within their role, duties, and functions, are responsible for engaging in practices that deter and defend Nuvance Health from fraudulent activities and other forms of improper and illegal conduct.

One key practice that Covered Individuals may exercise to reduce fraud-related risks is voicing their concerns with their supervisor or manager if they see a Nuvance Health activity that appears to be questionable or improper. Another practice that Covered Individuals may deploy to reduce fraud is imitating the prompt reporting of any suspected fraudulent behavior or other improper conduct that comes to their attention to the Compliance Office as outlined in § XV below. In short, all Covered Individuals may become champions of fraud prevention by performing these three (3) simple tasks: Ask Questions. Voice Your Concerns. Report Improper Conduct.

What is Fraud?

37) For purposes of this Policy, fraud can be considered in the following two (2) aspects:

- Fraud related to Federal healthcare programs (e.g., Medicare, Medicaid, and Tricare) and private payor reimbursement for the provision healthcare services and items. When discussing fraud in this aspect, the concepts of waste, and abuse should also be considered; and

- Organizational fraud.

Understanding Fraud, Waste, and Abuse in Federal healthcare programs

38) As it relates to Federal health care programs, fraud may generally be defined as “knowingly and willfully executing, or attempting to execute, a scheme or artifice to defraud any health care benefit program” or to engage in false or fraudulent activities to receive payment from 26 According to the OIG, “[i]n particular, arrangements with hospitals, hospices, nursing facilities, home health agencies, durable medical equipment suppliers, pharmaceutical manufacturers and vendors are areas of potential concern.” 65 Fed. Reg. at 59440.

27 See COSO, Sample Fraud Risk Management Policy, Appendix F-4, p. 91
said healthcare benefit program. In short, fraud is an intentional act involving the submission of false information to receive payment or a benefit from a federal healthcare program. In the context of Federal healthcare programs, fraud schemes and acts generally fall into one or more of the following three categories:

- “Knowingly submitting, or causing to be submitted, false claims or making misrepresentations of fact to obtain a Federal health care payment for which no entitlement would otherwise exist;”
- “Knowingly soliciting, receiving, offering, or paying remuneration (e.g., kickbacks, bribes, or rebates) to induce or reward referrals for items or services reimbursed by Federal health care programs;” or
- “Making prohibited referrals for certain designated health services.”

Some examples of fraud against Federal healthcare programs includes, but is not limited to:

- Knowingly billing for services and supplies that were not provided;
- Knowingly ordering and billing for unnecessary services;
- Paying for Federal healthcare program referrals
- Selling prescriptions;
- Intentionally billing for a more expensive treatment than was provided;

• Giving money or gifts to patients in exchange for the delivery of medical services;

• Accepting kickbacks for patient referrals;

• Billing for appointments patients fail to keep;

• Knowingly billing for non--covered services;

• Knowingly engaging in duplicate billing - billing separately for services that should be bundled together at a lower rate; and

• Inappropriately or illegally altering a claim or a document to support a claim.

How does Waste and Abuse Differ from Fraud?

40) With regard to Federal healthcare programs, the terms fraud, waste, and abuse have different meanings, as outlined in the table below:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Examples</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Fraud    | Fraud is characterized as intentional deceptions for the purpose of increasing Federal healthcare program reimbursement.                                                                                  | Knowingly billing for services that were not provided
Billing for nonexistent prescriptions
Intentionally falsifying medical records and claims forms to receive higher reimbursement |
| Waste    | Waste is usually the result of unacceptable inefficiencies. “Waste includes practices that directly or indirectly, result in unnecessary costs to [a Federally healthcare program].”
Generally, waste                                                                                                                                 | Ordering excessive diagnostic tests                                                                 |

Understanding Organizational Fraud

Nuvance Health also appreciates that many fraud-related risks exist in the context of Organizational Fraud. For purposes of this Charter, Organizational Fraud may be best defined as any intentional act or omission intended to deceive others that results in the perpetrating individual achieving a gain at the expense of Nuvance Health (or a Nuvance Health stakeholder) suffering a loss.

Examples of fraud in this context may include, but is not limited to:

- Fraudulent financial reporting - intentional misstatements or omissions of amounts or disclosures in financial statements to deceive financial statement users. This could include intentional alteration of accounting records, misrepresentation of transactions, or intentional misapplication of accounting principles. ¹ The Nuvance Health Internal Audit Charter was developed, in pertinent part, from the Institute of Internal Auditor’s (“IIA”) International Professional Practices Framework (IPPF), Supplemental Guidance - “Model Internal Audit Activity Charter” (March 2017).
² See IIA, Definition of Internal Auditing: “Internal auditing is an independent, objective assurance and consulting activity designed to add value and improve an organization’s operations. governance, risk management, and control process for the organization. Examples may include financial, performance, compliance, system security, and due diligence engagements.

Consulting services are advisory in nature and are generally performed at the specific request of an engagement client. Consulting services are advisory and related client service activities, the nature and scope of which agreed with the client, are intended to add value and improve an organization’s governance, risk management, and control processes without the internal auditor assuming management responsibility. Examples include counsel, advice, facilitation, and training.

The mission of internal audit is to enhance and protect organizational value by providing risk-based and objective assurance, advice, and insight. The internal audit activity helps Nuvance Health accomplish its objectives by bringing a systematic, disciplined approach to evaluate and improve the effectiveness of governance, risk management, and control processes.

II. Standards for the Professional Practice of Internal Auditing

The internal audit activity will govern itself by adherence to the mandatory elements of the Institute of Internal Auditors’ International Professional Practices Framework, including the Core Principles for the Professional Practice of Internal Auditing, the Code of Ethics, the International Standards for the Professional Practice of Internal Auditing, and the Definition of Internal Auditing. The CAE (“CAE”) will report periodically to the Chief Executive Officer and the Nuvance Health Audit and Compliance Committee of the Board of Directors regarding the internal audit activity’s conformance to the Code of Ethics and the Standards.
